CONFLICT MINERALS POLICY STATEMENT

In response to the violence and human rights violations following the extraction of certain materials from the “Conflict Region” located in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) and the neighbouring countries, the F.lli Paris Group is committed to supporting the humanitarian goal of ending the violent conflict in those areas.

The US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has issued a rule to implement the new detection and disclosure requirements relating to “Conflict Minerals” required by the 2010 “Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, Section 1502”. Under this rule, publicly traded companies must report annually the presence of “Conflict Minerals” originating from Central Africa in either the products they manufacture or contract to manufacture, or use in the production process.

The term “conflict minerals” refers to gold, tin, tantalum and tungsten. The US Secretary of State may designate other minerals in the future. F.lli Paris Group supports the humanitarian goal of ending violent conflict in the DRC and surrounding countries.

F.lli Paris Group is committed to:

- Designing and developing products that don't contain “Conflict minerals”;
- Avoiding the intentional supply of materials and components containing the specified metals sourced from mines or foundries in the “Conflict Area” that aren't certified “Conflict Free”;
- Ensuring compliance with the above requirements and asking its suppliers to set up a suitable evaluation process with their supply chain, in order to ensure that the specified metals are sourced exclusively from mines and foundries outside the “Conflict Area”, or mines and foundries that have been certified “Conflict Free” by an independent notifying body, when located inside the “Conflict Area”.

Our goal is to ensure that all our products and processes purchased make exclusive use of “Conflict Free” materials and parts.

Should minerals extracted or processed in facilities NOT considered “Conflict Free” be detected in any material, part or component purchased by the FP Paris Group, appropriate measures will be taken in order to ensure the product sold is “Conflict Free”.

Sincerely,

Diego Paris (DG)
